Jennifer Przybylski represents clients in the fields of wireless networks (including 5G), wearables, webpage interfaces, IP telephony, secure networks, streaming media, and biologic testing, and pharmaceuticals. Her work encompasses both district court litigation and appellate litigation, including in the U.S. District Courts for the District of Delaware; the Eastern and Western Districts of Texas; the Northern, Southern, and Central Districts of California; the District of Colorado; the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit; and the Supreme Court of the United States. She has experience in all phases of litigation, including pre-suit investigations, briefing and arguing claim construction, taking and defending fact and expert depositions, preparing trial examinations, writing summary judgment and appellate briefs, arguing summary judgment motions, and arguing jury instructions and evidentiary disputes at trial. Ms. Przybylski also has arbitration experience involving international contract disputes.

Ms. Przybylski was part of the team defending Cisco in a patent litigation dispute involving four patents asserted by Straight Path IP Group in the field of IP telephony. Following a successful motion for summary judgment of non-infringement in which the Northern District of California ruled in Cisco's favor on all asserted patent claims (Straight Path IP Group, Inc. v Cisco Sys., Inc., No. 16-03463, 2017 WL 6372971 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 13, 2017)), Ms. Przybylski worked on the successful opposition to Straight Path's appeal to the Federal Circuit, resulting in a Rule 36 affirmance. Straight Path IP Group, LLC v. Apple Inc., 748 Fed. Appx. 1027 (Fed. Cir. 2019). Ms. Przybylski also worked on Cisco's opposition to Straight Path's petition for writ of certiorari before the Supreme Court, resulting in a denial of certification. Straight Path IP Group, LLC v. Apple Inc., No. 19-253 (U.S.). Ms. Przybylski worked on successfully winning an attorney's fees award of $1.9M on behalf of Cisco in connection with that litigation.

Ms. Przybylski was also part of a team representing Enzo Life Sciences, Inc. that achieved favorable settlements in patent litigation against numerous defendants in federal district court. Enzo Life Sciences, an early innovator and patent holder in the area of molecular diagnostics, enforced its patents against several defendants, including Life Technologies (later part of Thermo
